JELlicoe DISCUSSES NAVY FOR CANADA

OTTAWA, March 10.—If Canada decides to co-operate in the general naval needs of the Empire, it may be convenient to possess a basis on which to build her fleet. The basis suggested under these conditions, is a fleet which, it is considered, that war experience has shown, should comprise, in the case of Canada, one battle cruiser, two light cruisers, six destroyers, four submarines, and two fleet minesweepers. The naval force suggested as adequate for the protection of Canada's ports, comprises three light cruisers, one flotilla leader, twelve torpedo craft, and eight submarines, with one parent ship. The above excerpts from the report of Viscount Jellicoe, Admiral of the fleet, on his naval mission to Canada, which was tabled in the Commons this afternoon by Hon. Mr. Balfour, Minister of Naval Service, indicate what this eminent authority in naval affairs considers are Canada's naval requirements, if she is to play her part in Empire affairs, and also if she is to protect her own shores. The report, which is not a lengthy one, after mentioning the subjects on which advice was requested by the Government of Canada, deals with the question of a Canadian navy under a number of specific heads. It mentions that naval assistance, in case of cruisers, destroyers, and other small vessels, rendered during the last eighteen months of the war by the United States, was a great help in the institution of a system of protecting trade by convoy, and that without this help Great Britain would only have been able to use convoys to a sufficient extent to meet the submarine menace, by abandoning some of her overseas expeditions. Four suggestions, ranging from a thirty-five million dollar fleet, to one costing five million dollars, are made by Admiral Jellicoe in his report.

LEAVES PRESIDENT WILSON'S CABINET

Robert Lansing, who recently resigned his office as Secretary of State, due to disagreement with the President. Cabinet meetings had been called in the Senate, which the President declined were upon national and also against his wishes, and that he had not kept in touch with them during the meetings. This led to the Secretary's resignation.

LONDON, March 10.—Fifty-two members of the Egyptian Legislative Assembly met recently at the House of Said Zaki Pasha, who headed the Egyptian mission to the Peace Conference, and adopted a resolution proclaiming the independence of Egypt and Soudan, according to a despatch from Cairo. The resolution also protested against the suspension of the Assembly and renounced the British protectorate.

What Ulster Thinks

BELFAST, March 10.—The Ulster Unionist Council decided today in favor of six Ulster counties being controlled by an Ulster Parliament should the new Home Rule Bill be enacted. The Council declined to accept any responsibility in regard to the bill, and it is understood will make no attempts to defeat it.

Airplane Tragedy

WICHITA, Kansas, March 10.—Emil Saegesser, airship pilot, Miss Clarice Hart, and John D. Ratchliffe, the latter eleven years old, were killed yesterday when the airplane in which they were riding caught fire, five hundred feet in the air near Cunningham.

SENATE POSTPONES TREATY VOTE TO GET DISENTANGLED

LONDON, March 10.—Peace Conference spent day in trying to work out details of military and naval plans in connection with Turkey giving particular attention to Armenia. Admiral Beatty, Winston Churchill and others were called on to give their opinions. Premier Venizelos of Greece was also present and again insisted that the Allies should take sternest measures against the Sultan. General plan of action was not changed, however, as result of Conference. It became known today that the military demonstration at Constantinople is likely to take form of Allied military control of certain Governmental activities, among them probably the War Department.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 10.—Peace Treaty compromise negotiations entered a period of fevered uncertainty today as time approached for final Senate action on Article X. Working desperately for an agreement, Senators on both sides of Chamber confounded the plans of their party leaders and threw Senate into such a tangle that it tacitly was agreed to delay vote for several days in hope that all elements might be more certain of their ground.

LONDON, March 10.—Under Secretary of State, Amery, in the House of Commons today said the question of preference between the West Indies, Canada and the United Kingdom had been under consideration by West Indian Associated Chambers of Commerce. Jamaica has not so far given any preference to Canada or to the United Kingdom.

Ex-Officer Facing Many Charges

One ex-officer is facing charges enough to keep him busy for some time to come. At Maidenhead Edward Ranscombe Tremlett, an ex-lieutenant of the Royal Flying Corps, was charged with bigamy, uttering worthless cheques and unlawfully wearing an army uniform and decorations. After a girl had been married to him for a week she found a letter to him beginning, "To my Hubby." She asked him what it meant and he swore that he was not married. Afterwards he admitted that he was married, and her mother turned him out of the house. Tremlett was committed for trial to the Berks Assizes.

Daring Burglars Enter Four Houses

The same burglars, apparently, entered four houses in different parts of Renfrewshire on a recent Saturday night. Commencing at Bowhead, two semi-detached villas were entered, and a quantity of jewellery stolen. In one case the occupants had only been absent 25 minutes, and on their return found the place in great disorder. The two men later entered a Paisley villa and took away $1,300 and a number of articles of jewellery. About 11 o'clock the same night the window in a semi-detached villa in Cardonald was forced open and the thieves thoroughly ransacked the house, but without gain. The owner was in bed, and was awakened by the noise, but the robbers got away.

Tide At Dundee Reaches Record

The tide at Dundee on a recent day was reported as being the highest during the past half-century. The water stood at 21 feet 9 inches, in Earl Gray Dock, 18 feet 9 inches, in King William Dock, and 25 feet 5 inches in Camperdown Dock—this constituting the record since 8th February, 1863, when the water stood at 3 inches above the level. The nearest approach to this height since 1868 was that of 12th February, 1899, when the tide stood at 21 feet in Earl Gray Dock.

Cause Of Bed Sores

BED SORES are caused by continued pressure on certain parts of the body. After the weight of the body rests for some time on one spot it interferes with the circulation in the tissues. This prevents the blood from bringing the necessary food supply to that part, consequently the tissue tends to lose its tone, sometimes breaking down entirely.

We see then that the direct cause of bed sores is pressure. But this is aggravated by friction, moisture, uncleanliness, or by wrinkles or creases in the under sheet. They are most likely to come on the bony projections of the body, the elbows, hips, knees, ankles, heels and shoulders, but they may occur anywhere, even on the ears and the back of the head. A paralytic or a patient who is delirious and unable to control the bowels or bladder is a case to be carefully watched. Bed sores are also likely to come on the aged, or on thin or emaciated persons. These sores are difficult to heal, and are a great drain on the already exhausted system of a patient.

The first sign of a bed sore evident to a nurse is redness which does not disappear when pressure is removed, later there is a dark discoloration like a bruise, and inflammation can continue until sloughing ensues. Sometimes the patient complains of a prickly sensation, or a feeling as if she were lying on something rough. But very often the patient does not complain at all, and unless the nurse is watchful a bed sore may be well advanced before she has the slightest suspicion of the subject. The great majority of bed sores are caused by carelessness or neglect on the part of the nurse. And a nurse who knows the danger, and yet through carelessness allows a bed sore to develop on her patient should justly feel herself disgraced. However, at times they occur with the most careful of nursing, especially where the vitality is much lowered, as in old age.

Questions And Answers

G. A. P. writes: I use gas in my home for illumination, and as I have several children I am always afraid that one of them might turn on the burner, and become overcome by the gas. In a case like that what would be the best thing to do?

Answer: In a case of gas suffocation, the patient should be immediately removed to where the air is fresh and good. If the child is only slightly affected walk him up and down in the open air, and give him an effervescent drink, as soda water, or a teaspoonful of soda in a glass of water. The idea is to cause belching of the gas. In a severe case give one-half teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in half a glass of water. If the patient is unconscious sprinkle a few drops of ammonia water on a handkerchief, and allow him to take one breath with it. Questions of general interest relating to Home Nursing will be answered in this column, space permitting. Address Isabella Griffith, care our office.

this under his nose every minute. The clothing should be loosened around the neck and chest. If the breathing has ceased artificial respiration should be used. The doctor should be sent for at once.

M. F. writes: Will you please tell me a home way to make a mask to wear in cases of "flu", to keep from getting the disease?
Answer: The regular mask is made of several thickness of gauze and is about six inches by four inches. A piece of tape about twenty inches long is sewed across the top and bottom, the mask being attached to the center. In the center of the mask a piece of black cotton is sewed to designate the outside. A similar one might be made at home using a thin piece of old muslin.

"On the Bowery"

New York's old-time Bowery is no more. Observers say the old street will "come back" but the fact remains that it is not the Bowery of other days. No final rites have marked its passing, nor has the last requiem been sung, but of recent months the change has been progressively swift and noticeable.

Only old-timers can remember the Tub of Blood and other famous dives but now even the modern hang-outs are disappearing one by one before the blight of national prohibition. If the venerable thoroughfare has not attained to the drab gentility of other "reclaimed" portions of the city, it is at least putting out the first shoots of self-conscious respectability.

Most potent of the changes in America's former driftway of human wreckage is the virtual disappearance of the "Bowery bum." A newspaper feature writer recently sojourned on the street for a time, and he reported that the "bums" are now almost all at least casual workers, and that "cush," or a sizable roll of the "long green," abounds.

A Few "Bitter-Enders"

True a few "lend-me-a-dime" artists survive, and there is a residue of "bitter-enders" as staunch—or obstinate, depending upon the point of view—as any to be found in the United States Senate, but the majority of the Bowery habitues have, as usual taken the easiest way, which under present conditions, is to do at least a little work at big wages.

"Hard Luck and no work stories don't go this year," says the manager of the Salvation Army Hotel, at 223 Bowery, which concededly, is the Bowery lodging house de luxe. I have called for more unskilled laborers at 40 or 50 cents an hour if every body wanted to work.

"In the hotel we now have more than five hundred regular guests who are regularly employed. These men are self-respecting and have scant sympathy for the confirmed loafer. Most of them have no homes except shortage of jobs; to-day there is a hotel, and they do not want the scarcity of labor."

That is the rosy side of the picture. On the dark side is the sad fact that mighty scourge, these days—I let him "pork and" has gone from 5 or 10 to alone the first day, but the second as high as 30 cents. The old 3-cent I tell him he has got to work or get above is now 10 cents in the basement out. If he says he has no job I tell him to go to the street, just as narrowing-

ly hazardous. But the fact remains that the cost of the Bowery's little luxuries and necessities has not risen to the extent that has in earning power. Is No Fifth Avenue

Relative affluence reigns on the former poverty line, and what holds on the Bowery holds pretty much throughout the United States. All of which does not go to prove that the Bowery is a second Fifth Avenue—not. To appreciate the Bowery of today you must have known the Bowery of yesterday. You must have come up to it from below. Looked down on from above, it is drab, uninviting, almost gruesome—a place where battered human hulks still drift. They are riding now on the flood tide of good fortune. Hence their rise to levels heretofore unknown.

Baby Weighs 17½ lbs.

A bouncing baby arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson of Oil City, Pennsylvania, recently. He weighed 17½ pounds at birth, and physicians claim this to be a world's record. At the great New York maternity hospitals the average weight is said to be 7½ pounds, more than a 10 pound baby being a rarity. This baby is the forth in the Thompson family, which already includes twins.

C. C. C. Sports

The C.C.C. held their sports last night in the Armory, which were not only successful, but a real treat to those who participated, and to the spectators who filled the galleries and the other spaces available. Major Murphy, Capt. McGrath and Lieut. Christopher were present to encourage the boys, as also the executive of the Old Comrades Association, who offered teams in several of the competitions. It was a real pleasure to the older "boys" who had served "over there" to see the interest and enthusiasm manifested by the juniors, and particularly so in the stubborn fights they put up, and their staying power in the contests when the Old Comrades put forward their best teams. Owing to the sports not taking place until after Church services, they were not finished at regulation closing hour, and will be continued on to-morrow night. The results of last night's games are as follows:

Clancey's team vs. Pte. Power's team—won by Pte. Power's team, 1 to 0.

2—Junior 100 yards dash—1st. J. Kavanagh; 2nd. J. Russell.

3—Senior hockey (a) Parsley vs. Redmond; won by Parsley's team 1 to 0. (b) Old Comrades vs. Bugle Band; won by Old Comrades, 3 to 0.

4—Junior quarter mile—D. Fleming 1st. J. Russell 2nd.

5—Quarter mile—1st. M. Flynn; 2nd. R. Redmond.

6—Junior tug of war—Won by Sgt. Major Clancey's team.

7—Senior basket ball. (a) Old Comrades vs. Sgt. R. Redmond's team—Won by Old Comrades, 4 to 1. (b) N.C.O.'s vs. Bugle Band—Won by Bugle Band.

8—Junior half mile—1st. D. Fleming; 2nd. J. Russell.

9—Senior Relay Race—Won by Bugle Band.

10—Cavalry tournament—Won by C. Poer and W. O'Toole.

Gallant Officer Dies From Injuries

A gallant officer from South Africa, Lieut. C. Campbell Wood, saw a woman drowning in the Thames. He dived after her, jumping from Hammersmith Bridge and saved her life but by the heroic act he sustained injuries from which he subsequently died at the Finchley R. A. F. Hospital. Lieut. Wood had arranged to leave for his home in South Africa next day. He had been recommended for recognition by the Carnegie Hero Fund. As he has not lived to receive it the award will probably be made to his next-of-kin.

Feildians Win Hockey Game

For the first time this season the Terra Nova's, last year's champions and leaders in the present series, went down to defeat last night, the Feildians defeated them by a score of 5 goals to 3. Much interest was centered in the result, as a win for them the championship. The Feildians, however, are now equal with them and a play off is necessary to decide who will hold the honors. The contest which was easily the fastest for the season, the first period closing with the score 2 to 2 and the second 4 to 1. In the final round, which was a bit rough, the victors found the net for two goals while Tobin was in the penalty box, and the Terra Nova's were unable to equal before the whistle sounded, though they succeeded in finding the net once. Both teams, through working hard, lost chances in front of the goal through lack of combination. Ewing, Winter, and Rendell shone for the Feildians; the latter scoring the best goal for the evening, after making a sweep of the rink. Shortly before the close he had to retire, being slightly injured in the leg. Canning and Stick brothers did splendid work for the Terra Novas. Mr. Chas. Parsons, was referee, Messrs. C. Ellis and Curran, timekeepers; Dr. Power punner, timer, and earn and Dugan goal judge.

The players were:

Terra Novas.	goal.	Feildians.
Rawling.	goal.	Hunt.
R. Stick.	defence.	Tait.
Tobin.	defence.	Rendell.
Harder.	centre.	Payne.
Canning.	right.	Alteridge.

Winter was spare for the Feildians and Mews for the Terra Novas. The goals were scored in the following order:

thing of bedding, wearing apparel and other movables were ordered destroyed, and the strictest system of fumigation carried out before the men were allowed on shore.

Contrast this with present precautions, and we are forced to the conclusion that the Smallpox theory is not taken very seriously by those who know. But all this as it may, we as a community ask for and ought to have some attention. There are a few of us who do not criminally deny its presence in our families; and who do not care to intrude ourselves upon our neighbours to be viewed as a nuisance though affected with the plague.

Within the last few hours I have been told that one of the clergymen in the district has been forbidden to visit his people here on the score of their having Smallpox. Upon what adequate authority may I ask?

Come gentlemen concerned, get busy and do as the situation demands. Let us have an investigation and a reasonable pronouncement, so that those visited with it may have a show of justice, and those yet unaffected the protection which is their right.

Outraged,

HOCKEY

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—In the "Daily News" of a few mornings ago I noticed a letter from "A Lover of clean sport," in which he deplores broken heads, arms, etc., in our hockey matches.

Though I haven't seen any such horrors as yet at the Prince's Rink, I think that where such strenuous matches occur, players are bound to get knocked around a bit. Men with the sporting instinct and good red blood in their veins, only engage in athletics. The exercises inseparable to the kindergarten or a manly game of marbles or "jackstones" would have greater appeal to the interest of the "News" scribe.

Yours in disgust,

Twenty Acres Land Is Covered By Bog

A large bog lying between Moylough and Tubbercurry has moved over 300 yards, and covered 20 acres of land belonging to Mr. P. Brennan, Mr. John McDonnell and Mr. John Coffey, as well as depriving them and nine other farmers of turbary, as the right of cutting turf or peat is legally styled. The banks are now covered with slush and mud and the land has been covered over to a depth of from 12 to 14 feet. The course of the moving bog was stopped by a small river, which is now completely impeded, causing serious flooding.

HOW ENGLAND FARES!

The extract given below is from a letter received from a friend now visiting England, and it gives us a good view of how that country is faring in post-war times.

Coal is scarce enough here, but it has not got to the stage when it is necessary to obtain a doctor's prescription in order to light a fire in one's room. In the case of sugar, also, we are situated very differently from the Mother Country, in that we have plenty stocks and an assured supply for many months, with an advantage also that the price is going to decrease rather than increase.

Mr. Coaker, in his interview with The London Daily Mail the other day, spoke as if one of the great drawbacks to England's recovery after war is that production and labor are not going on as they might. There is a story that while there is a sugar shortage in England, the docks there are full of sugar supplies, which are not available because there are no workers to move it. There is no doubt that the future safety of the world lies in production, and a lopping off of the pursuits which do not produce, but which add to costs without contributing any real service. This is the theory, but whether it is going to be worked out is a question that cannot be decided. Troubles on all sides would point to the fact that men's minds are turned to unrest rather than anything else. The hard work of a producer will want to be recompensed a great deal more than in the past if he is to stay on the land, or work in the mine, or fish. There will need to be open business with the profits shown clearly, there will need to be closer contact between the people and business men, and until this is brought about, there seems to be no hope for quieter times. Cooperation in the full sense of the term is, must be, the key of the future.

Here is the letter, written from London:

Restrictions are still in force here on sugar, butter and coal, owing to shortage, which we never experienced in Newfoundland at any time during the war. As to sugar, I have not seen any fine granulated sugar since I arrived at any hotel or restaurant that I have into. Sometimes during the day one may get one or two pieces of cube sugar. Consequently when having porridge we resort (or some of us) to the use of marmalade over porridge. When no sugar is available for use in tea or coffee, saccharin tablets can be used. Two about the size of a pea are sufficient to sweeten, but it requires much stirring to dissolve, else it gives a bad taste in the mouth. Its use is not encouraged owing to its bad effect on the heart. The shortage of sugar is felt in many ways. Cake, puddings, fruit, candies etc., contain so little that they are not pleasing to the taste as what we get at home.

I never knew what a shortage in coal meant until I struck Manchester. We had two or three cold days with wet snow falling, making the weather very raw in its effects. Consequently to do writing of a private nature (which has to be done in one's own room) a fire is needed, so that the feet and hands do not get cold. On asking the head porter to get a fire made in the room, we were informed that it was necessary to get a doctor's prescription. As to milk up to the present time it is not easy to obtain any after six o'clock, not even condensed or evaporated milk.

There has been considerable discussion over the question of lifting the regulations, which some think hamper the free circulation of food supplies. There are many friends connected with the Government of those who uphold this contention, and their interference has been such as to lead to the resignation of Mr. G. H. Roberts, the Food Controller. The Cabinet, however, is trying to bridge the difficulty, and those who contend that the lifting of the regulations will mean higher prices and no improvement in supply are likely to prevail for the present.

Re politics: Britain today is not the Britain of 1914. In my conversation with men of all classes, I was agreeably surprised to find a very strong desire for a higher order than at present prevails. There are not a few business men who recognize that the Labor Party alone has the vision, which will enable it to serve and possess the future. Even such men as Lord Haldane, General Thomson, C. R. Buxton, Joseph King, Richard Lambert, H. D. Lees Smith, R. S. Outhwaite, Arthur Ponsonby, Charles Trevelyan, Josiah Wedgwood, all former Liberal M. P.'s, take a similar stand, and are giving their support to the Labor Party.

There was always one class of worker impervious to Labor appeals, the clerks in the stores, warehouses and offices. It is surprising to find how many of them today are discontented and looking for the return of the Labor Party to remedy to some extent present conditions. The high cost of living is largely the cause of their attitude. While I do not predict a Labor Government in the near future, I have no doubt it will increase its representation very considerably.

The miners have been conducting a campaign throughout the country the past week for the nationalization of the mines. This is done with the object of bringing pressure to bear on the Government to do something in this direction during the next session of Parliament, which opens next week. They have held one hundred meetings to date, with an attendance of between three and four hundred thousand outside the mining organizations. I attended such a meeting last night at the People's Palace, at which there was about 2,000 present. Mr. Robertson, M. P. for Bothwell, Scotland, and several others spoke. An organ recital preceded the speeches, which was excellent. The "red flag" was sung, and the singing of 2,000 people with the large and beautiful toned organ was thrilling. London in a revolution of thought! To hear these 2,000 voices singing such a revolutionary song, made me feel confident that the aspirations of so many people in Britain today for a complete change in our social order is sure to come in time. One thing very noticeable in the speeches of the Labor men, is their appeal to reason, not to prejudice, such as obtained in our elections, and mind you they are none the less uncompromising in their attitude towards capitalism.

Mr. Bromley, at the meeting last night, and a miners' representative, stated the Government has now three propositions before it: Nationalization of the Mines, a General Election, or a General Strike. Suppose a general election happens and the voters decide against nationalization, the miners will keep up the fight till they win the people to their view. This stand by the miners is not taken with a selfish motive behind it. They are bitterly opposed to the profit system, and out of the £50,000,000 profits made on coal the past year, they say what they desire is not increase in wages, but that part of it be utilized to improve conditions underground and whatever is left over shall go to the consumer by reduction in the price of coal. Another speaker stated there were seven million people in Greater London who could obtain only two hundred weight of coal per month. Fortunately the winter here is more like our autumn, else they would freeze to death.

There is no doubt about it that the craze for amusement in England is astonishing. It is a common sight to see hundreds of people standing at the doors of all the theatres for hours in queues awaiting entrance. This, multiplied together, would number some scores of thousands each night. No such thing is seen at the doors of churches. Another very noticeable habit is that of smoking by women. This is increasing to a large degree. At hotels and restaurants it is a common sight. It is said that when a woman takes up a bad habit she can become many times worse than a man. This appears to be true in smoking, for they (the women) go in for cigarettes and that with beer, wine and whiskey, is fast driving many of them into the abyss.

It cannot be said that the women of England as a whole are as tasty in their dress as the American women. While they wear good material, their styles are unattractive for those accustomed to American styles. The English style is rather slovenly, particularly in headgear, and the dress is not very much better. However, with all their faults, the British people stand higher than the Americans. There is a greater spirit of tolerance, there is no tyranny of the majority, such as is seen in the United States. Their standard in politics and Government is higher, and, barring Ireland's misrule, Americans can ill afford to point the finger of scorn at England.

Grateful For The "Prospero"

We were glad to get the letter which we give below, as it serves to show that even if Captain John Field in the "Prospero" had been frozen in all the winter, the work which he was able to accomplish for the extern sections to the North would have been worth it all. When the "Prospero" went North, it would have been quite possible for the Captain to come back, having reached Tilt Cove, and owing to the lateness of the season few sailing men would have blamed him; but no, he had passengers eager to get to Grique, and freight of foodstuffs for which the people there and other places were absolutely in need of, and so Captain Field "carried on" landed his freight, to the great joy of the people, amid difficulties never before encountered by a coastal steamer, and turned back to find that the ice had come in and he was "locked." Captain Field kept his crew and passengers well, and successfully arrived back without a casualty, and we know that the great assistance he rendered to those who were anxiously waiting for food and other necessities will always be remembered by them.

Here is the letter:

Will you please give me space in The Advocate to mention a few words about our last two or three mails by the s.s. Prospero and the s.s. Seal. Since the first mail brought to our side of White Bay, there has never been such weather, and it is this I would like the people to know, that we are all very proud of the Captains of these two ships, the Prospero and the Seal. I do not think that any man could do any better in such storms as we had this Fall. No person here ever witnessed such conditions. We very kindly thank Captain A. Kean for his past service, for he has obliged many a man, and also Captain Wes. Kean. I think that Captain John Field will be a very good man for such work, as we need one who has some push in him. Since Mr. Field took charge there hasn't been a more trying time since the Prospero first moved her propeller; and still we hear that Capt. A. Kean has a bit in the papers against Mr. John Field and Mr. Saunders. Is it ever possible? I haven't seen it myself. And Capt. A. Kean has so often spoken in favor of his men, even in the presence of the passengers on the Prospero. Surely if it is in the papers, I shall have a good chance to see it. Probably it's the work of some other person's pen.

The Magistrate's Court "Viking" Takes the Key

For the past two days His Honor Judge Morris has been engaged in the trial of a case against one of the members of the crew of the s.s. Rosamund. The defendant was charged with a breach of Sec. 207 of the Customs Management Act. The legal point involved an interpretation as to whether the Prohibition Act had not repealed certain sections of the Customs Act.

Mr. H. A. Winter, B.L., appeared for the Crown and Mr. Cyril Fox for the defendant. In his judgment rendered yesterday afternoon, Judge Morris holds that he cannot agree with the learned Counsel's (Mr. Fox's) contention that the Prohibition Act repeals Section 207 of the Customs Act. The Judge continues: "In my opinion the Section is not either expressly or impliedly repealed by the Prohibition Act."

The statement made by the Defendant, "You got me again 'Tobin' is properly admitted in Detective Tobin's evidence. The defendant was not under arrest or duress and he made the statement voluntarily. It was not any part of the duty of Detective Tobin to administer a caution to him."

The proviso in Sec. 46 of the Customs Act refers to ship's stores and not to bottles of liquor in possession of members of the crew. The defendant had concealed in a grip two bottles of Rum and a half bottle of Rum was found under a quilt in his bunk. He was charged with unlawfully importing this Rum into the country. It was rightfully seized by the Customs officer and forfeited.

The penalty under Sec. 207 will apply if the Defendant is convicted.

The Crown has submitted a Prima facie case to the Court and the burden of proof is cast upon the Defendant.

The Viking, Capt. William Bartlett, sails at 2 p.m. and takes the key for the sealing voyage of 1920. Again good luck to all our captains, couriers and the men who tread the frozen pans. Everything points to a successful seal fishery.

Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Norris' Arm, who has been in town for several days on business, received a wire before he left for home by last evening's express, that his residence had been destroyed by fire during the day.

Destroyed By Fire

Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Norris' Arm, who has been in town for several days on business, received a wire before he left for home by last evening's express, that his residence had been destroyed by fire during the day.

The Meigs' Passengers

The following passengers who came from Louisburg by the s.s. Meigs arrived here from Placentia yesterday afternoon: T. F. Armstrong, P. W. Kelly, S. Levitt, A. Michael, M. Kervin, D. C. Connolly, E. Russell, H. Wilbur, W. H. Parsons, S. A. Devereaux, Miss Stick and A. J. Mackinson.

Mr. Colin Tavernor, cousin of Capt. Tavernor of the s.s. Glencoe, and purser of that ship, has for three weeks past been on the Kyle as purser. Mr. Ryan, who holds that position, is enjoying a holiday which he well deserves.

Under section 239 of the Customs Act, the defendant, not submitting a defence, he is convicted of a breach of Sec. 207, and fined $50.00 or one month's imprisonment.

SLACK COAL.

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—If the selling of coal due to unfortunates of this city at the rate of $15.00 per ton is regarded by the purveyors of such as legitimate business, I think otherwise. In other departments of business it is not generally the custom to liberally cut the price of goods which have greatly deteriorated? Then why should coal merchants make the poor pay for the slack which they are now putting on the market? It gives absolutely no heat, it is next to impossible to light it, it fills the homes of the unfortunate users with sulphurous smoky fumes, and renders cooking an almost impossible task. Fifteen dollars a ton for such slack is no longer to be tolerated. Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours,

INDIGNANT HOUSEHOLDER.

Our indignant correspondent feels very sore over this coal question, and unfortunately some of the coal sellers have no other goal to offer but slack. Perhaps they might accede to the request that it be sold at a lower figure than the regular rate.—E.D.

Dear Sir.—Please grant me space in your much esteemed paper to record the death of a loving husband and affectionate father in the person of Mr. George Winson of Westville, who fell asleep in Jesus Nov. 3rd, 1919, in his seventy-fourth year. He bore his sickness with great patience and in all he was never heard to murmur or complain, only patiently waiting for God's call to take him to that "Land which is fairer than day." His last words were: "When his eyes would close in death his peace was made with God. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Baggs of Newtown. He delivered a very touching sermon from II Corinthians, 1st verse, "for we know if our earthly house of

JAMES LONG, SR.
(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—Now that the train service is working again, I beg to chronicle through your journal, the death of James Long, Sr., of Open Hall, who died on Jan. 1st, of angina pectoris. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of 77 years, but one may say had scarcely a day's sickness up till the time of his death. On the evening of Dec. 30th he complained of feeling a very severe pain about the region of the stomach and heart, which, as the night advanced, seemed to grow worse. Then both spiritual and medical aid were summoned, but the flat had gone forth. He suffered much for these two days, but was quite reconciled to God's holy will, and consoling to the last. Rev. Fr. Scully of King's Cove remained by his bedside till the end, and assisted at a Solemn Mass of Requiem on the day of his funeral.

Mr. Long was certainly a fine specimen of the old school, charitable to the poor, devoted to his church and his word was his bond. His house was ever open to the poor and the stranger, and many a tear will be shed and many a prayer offered for the repose of his soul. He is survived by five children, two sons and three daughters, Mr. J. E. Long, teacher at Open Hall, and Mr. Wm. Long, who formerly taught at Bay Bulls, and now residing at the old homestead, are his sons, while three married daughters survive him and all were around his bedside at the time of his death. He leaves also, nearly thirty grandchildren, and numerous other relatives. To one and all the writer extends his most profound sympathy.

Yours, etc.,

Soda Dispenser Is Married By 'Phone

A Detroit girl, with a soul for romance and a moving picture show education, listened to a soda dispenser at the Hotel Statler and thought it would be great to be married by telephone. So after she had said "yes" three or four times over a telephone to a man who said he was a clergyman, they went away for their honeymoon. Before it was over she learned that it was a hoax and she was not married at all. The former dispenser of soft drinks is now behind the bars of the county jail.

A BARREL OF FLOUR FOR A QUINTAL OF FISH SAYS FISHERMEN

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your most valuable paper, the Weekly Advocate, concerning the affairs of life, as I may say. Well, sir, at the present time things don't seem to look much brighter yet, but we hope and trust that it will get brighter, with the lapse of time. People cannot say now that it is the Government putting prices higher, as we most all have said, but now we have a New Government we are hoping to get new things and prices fair. But, Mr. Editor, the way the prices of things are going now, it is altogether beyond the poor man's reach. What are poor people going to do if things don't get cheaper, and the fish higher. Mr. Editor, anyone with common sense knows that the poor fishermen cannot live with the high cost of living as it is now at the present time. For fancy, Mr. Editor, you take a quintal of number one fish and carry it to the merchants, and say, "Now sir, I want a number one barrel of flour for this," what do you think he would say to you, why, sure he would turn his eyebrows down and tell you go and get another half a quintal before you get a barrel of flour from me. Now, Mr. Editor, that is just what poor people want, a barrel of flour for a quintal of fish. Unless we get that we will have a hard struggle to live, especially the poor man who has seven or eight in family, and they are common. And I say now, Mr. Editor, a quintal of fish is worth a barrel of flour. The way poor people got to work and toil to get it made. According to Labrador slop fish, I say our Shore fish is worth three dollars a quintal more, because there are hundreds of quintals of Labrador fish don't see the sun after it has been washed out, and then they will go to St. John's and get quite so much as we do for our number one Shore fish. I heard on our Circular Letter about the cull of fish. Yes, Mr. Editor, we want a cull on fish, but if we have a strict cull we want a good price for it. I also heard about hooking the blood out from the sound bone and fin. Well, Mr. Editor, no doubt that would be a good thing, as it would make the fish much whiter and cleaner, and then it is said that we would get one dollar a quintal more for it.

What I have said I am justified in saying, so now, Mr. Editor, I think I have said enough for this time. Wishing our President and his Company a happy success to the European markets, and a prosperous New Year.

I remain, yours in the fight,

FISHERMAN.

For Fear Of Prosecution Under U. T. A.

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 25.—A case of whiskey is going begging in this city because no person dare take it in, and the local license inspector has written to the department at Toronto for advice in the matter.

A woman ordered it from Montreal, but she was fined for a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act since then. A neighbor offered to buy the booze, but this would constitute a breach of the U. T. A., it is said. The woman who ordered the case tried to stop shipment after she was fined, but her countermand did not reach Montreal in time. She has appealed to the license inspector, and he, in turn, has asked for advice from Toronto.

Lewes, Sussex, prison and workhouse are both empty.

IN LEAP YEAR

(New York Globe)

Leap year is funny. All the humorists are agreed as to this, and ordinarily, perhaps, they are right. But there are at least two countries where this leap year serves to remind us of a situation which is anything but comic. There is a "husband shortage," due, of course, to the war, in both England and France. In the former country, the number of marriageable women exceeds the number of marriageable men by two millions, and in France the condition is about the same. There are also many thousands of men in both countries who would like to marry but can't afford it—men not yet settled into the routine of civilian life after their army experience, men frightened by the cost of living, men whom the war has made into listless nomads and confirmed bachelors.

In Paris a few weeks ago the maidettes went through the annual pathetic ceremony of bestowing flowers upon those of their number who have reached the age of twenty-five and are therefore supposedly "out of the running" in the race for husbands. But there were so many such girls this year and so many even younger who bought flowers for themselves in grim recognition of the situation, that the ceremony was far from funny.

A British physician, writing in the January Atlantic Monthly, declares that the gravest social consequences may be expected from the presence in England of such a large body of unmarried women, especially since they are not of the "old maids' type of temperament," which is the cause of most female celibacy in normal times. Speaking as a doctor, he predicts increasing restlessness among these women, a disposition to welcome any sort of social or economic change, and a serious relaxation of moral standards, which he speaks of as in fact partially accomplished. This relaxation is closely linked with the competition to attract the attention of the remaining marriageable men; the suggestion has more than once been made that the extreme styles in which Parisian women have been dressing—styles which grow more startling, not less so are subconsciously caused by the impulse toward this sort of competition.

Whether this be true or not, the situation remains one of the most serious aspects of the aftermath of war. It is increasingly apparent that when the Kaiser and his fellow "statesmen" sowed the dragon's teeth of war they brought up on the world miseries which no one then had genius enough to predict.

She: "Of course, he bored me awfully, but I don't think I showed it. Every time I yawned I just hid it with my hand."

He (trying to be gallant): "Really, I don't see how a hand so small could—er—hide—er—that is—beastly weather we're having, isn't it?"
